Both Hunan red culture in the new era and college students' labour education have the characteristics of advancing with the times, and the spiritual connotation of both have important educational significance and certain relevance, however, they also face the problems of low degree of innovation and few practical processes, therefore, exploring the paths and methods of integrating Hunan red culture in college students' labour education in the new era, improving the rationality and practicability of the two are the fundamental needs for carrying forward the educative function of Hunan red culture and enhancing the effectiveness of labour education.

2. The Educational Function of Huxiang Red Culture

2.1 The Spiritual Connotation of Huxiang Red Culture

In the long-term revolutionary struggle, their thoughts, wills, and beliefs have been continuously sublimated, and their spiritual qualities are an important component of Huxiang's red culture. The red culture of Huxiang contains a rich cultural spirit and is an important historical and cultural culture in China, which demonstrates the great patriotic spirit and fearless spirit of the Huxiang people. Huxiang culture has distinct personalities and characteristics, mainly in the following aspects.

The famous revolutionary martyr Guo Liang was a well-known leader of the labor movement, who organized the general strike of the Guangdong-Hankou Railway in 1922, and made indelible contributions to national independence and people's liberation with his unwavering faith and indomitable spirit. Zhang Chao, who was born in Yueyang in 1986, served as the captain of a carrier-based aviation unit of the Navy, and has carried out combat take-off missions many times, showing the self-confidence of the Chinese army in the process of air competition with foreign military aircraft. It is precisely the land of Huxiang that countless patriots have emerged, who have made unremitting efforts for the prosperity and strength of the country and national independence, and jointly forged the patriotic spirit of Huxiang.

(2) The spirit of innovation that dares to be the first in the world. Mao Zedong was determined to change China's poverty and weakness when he was young, and began a magnificent historical journey with countless like-minded revolutionary comrades. The victory of the October Revolution in Russia brought hope to semi-colonial and semi-feudal China, and the leaders of the Communist Party of China represented by Comrade Mao Zedong changed their thinking on the basis of China's reality and opened up the revolutionary road of "encircling the cities from the countryside." History has proved that it was the courage to innovate and seek change that finally marched toward the victory of the revolution. Nowadays, in the process of Chinese-style modernization, Huxiang red culture has played an important role in economy, culture, education and other aspects.
